VOTE FOR ULLRICH.

As we go to press the school election is in progress, and is calling out a pretty full vote, although no candidate except Mr. Ullrich is known to be in the field. It is to be hoped that there may be a general turnout of the voters, and that Mr. Ullrich may receive the compliment of a large vote. His card, which we publish elsewhere, indicates that those who assume that his election will be equivalent to a public condemnation of Mr. Gastman do so upon their own responsibility entirely, and not by any authority of Mr. Ullrich. The issue as to whether the new board shall be for or against the retention of the present superintendent has not been presented by the candidacy of Mr. Ullrich, no matter how much certain interested parties may seek to gain an "undisputed" by endeavoring to create that impression.

The recent horrible crimes in Boston have turned attention to the necessity of doing something to stop indiscriminate payloving and thereby give to punishment a greater element of certainty. At a recent meeting in Boston, one of the speakers produced the pardon statistics for the past twenty years, from which it appeared that in one year, of 102 criminals sentenced to state prison fifty-four were pardoned out, while in other years the percentage of pardons to sentences had been thirty-five, thirty-seven, eighteen and nineteen, and in only one year as low as eight. The lavish exercise of the pardoning power is unquestionably one of the greatest obstructions to crime, not only in Massachusetts, but in most of the other States. The pardon-board should be banished from every executive chamber in the land.

FROM FRIENDS CREEK.

FRIENDS CREEK, June 8, 1875.
REPUBLICAN.—I had the pleasure of addressing a large and enthusiastic meeting last night, at Cook Skin School House, on Pumpkin Creek, in this township. My theme was "Frugal Economy." I told, in eloquent and impressive language, how one hundred and fifty-seven dollars and twenty-five cents of the hard earnings of the honest husbandman of this township were foolishly squandered each year in paying for the 100 newspapers now taken by the farmers of this township, while one good newspaper—the Local Review, for instance—would do for all.

I corresponded with Mr. Lindsay on the subject, and he says if we will take one copy of his paper a whole year, we may have it for one dollar and forty-five cents, as it don't cost him much to live nowadays.

I was here interrupted by Mr. Hinkelshaffer, who stated that he was opposed to paying any money for a newspaper, as he went to Decatur every week, and could pick up a paper at Hinkelshaffer's saloon for nothing, and that all meet at his house Sunday afternoons and hear the paper read. He thought it was the best thing we could do, as there are but few of us who can read since the Republicans went back on us.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Dr. Brown has returned from Baltimore.

T. B. Shaff, of Paris, Ill., graced our city with his presence this morning.

Johnny Hadman is the police conductor for the St. Nicholas.

Mrs. Wm. H. Hatch, of Taylorville, is in the city, visiting friends, and her father and mother.

Rev. J. W. Crane, of the Oakland Herald gave us a call this morning. He came to this city last night for a short visit and left for Oakland this morning.

Frank Falcner, of Post Scott, Kansas, was in town yesterday. He is now studying for the ministry, and expects to go to Congress next election. It wouldn't surprise it, it would seem a mighty odd specimen back into Congress from the grasshopper state.

Among the guests registered at the St. Nicholas hotel yesterday are the following:

Ed. Wiley, Cincinnati; C. B. Smith, Champaign; Albert Emerson, Monticello; J. P. Pratt, Chicago; H. Otwell, Peoria; A. McCallister, Ottumwa; H. C. F. Emery, Monticello; W. A. Belmont, Toledo; Jason Rogers, Macon; Thos. A. Collett, Lexington; M. H. Cannon, Hardaway; J. R. Ash, Decatur; J. J. Davis, city; H. C. Gray, do; W. A. Ebbin, Pittsburg; Thos. Boyle, Chicago; S. L. Coggeshall, New York; C. M. Cornwall, Chicago; J. M. Smith, Sullivan; George B. Graham, Clinton; D. L. Marsh, Canton; O. J. W. Chan, Oakland; J. Boughn, Warrensburg; C. H. Wright, Philadelphia; L. M. Sumner, field, Chicago; A. Sumner, field, do.

FROM FLORIDA.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 2.
EDITORS REPUBLICAN.—I arrived here Monday, May 31st, at 9 o'clock A. M., after a long and tiresome railroad trip of about 2000 miles, without accident, incident or delay.

Jacksonville is a city of about 13,000 inhabitants, situated on the north and east bank of the St. Johns river, and extending over about as much ground as Decatur. Bay street is the principal business thoroughfare; it is 100 feet wide, running parallel with the river, east and west, and is the first street from the dock, or water landing. The business houses are principally of brick. The sidewalks are of plank and brick, the street itself being of its original element—sand.

Parallel with Bay street are residence streets, 5 or 6 in number, upon all of which are the agreeable looking houses of its people. Crossing these streets at right angles are streets running north and south. Business creeps around the corners of the streets, from Bay street, from a half block to a block and a half, and then residences. The Metropolitan Hotel (at which I am stopping) is on one of these cross streets. The Grand National, situated on Bay street, and fronting the steamboat landing and railroad depot, is the big hotel of the city. The St. James, the next in order, is situated on one of the streets running north from Bay. Both the last named hotels are closed, it being the dull season.

Piquantly across from the St. James is Morrissey's Club House, also closed. The hotels are large and well built.

An adjunct of the city, called Brooklyn and Riverside, lies across a creek, which is passed over on a bridge.

Some of the roads leading north are "badlands," and are delightful to drive over. There is a small road leading to the new and fair grounds, four miles north.

Last, along the river, are situated large saw mills, where a specimen of "the fire that is never quenched" is accomplished in an obnoxious way, about 500 feet long, carried off the slabs and planks then over into a fire, where they are consumed. The fire is protected from escape or danger by a brick wall, about thirty feet high, surrounding it in a half circle. It comes out right on the street, and is very hot to the passer-by. It would seem as if the slab wood could be used in some manner more profitable, but when you look at the dense pine forests surrounding this whole country, then you realize that slab wood has not much value. The mills front on the river, from which, on one side, rafts of logs are pulled up to the saw, and on the other side vessels are loading with lumber for all markets. The lumber is yellow pitch pine and live oak. It is a large industry here.

Building, mostly brick, is going on all over the city, and it is as active as any northern man could desire.

It is a cleanly, handsome, business-like city—not of the dashing order in its business, or flashy order in its residences—but satisfying in both, or either. With a friend, and upon invitation, I rode all over the city this afternoon, and what I saw of its business and pleasure would make a subject for a long letter. The city is well policed by black men, and it is a quieter city than Decatur after night fall. The city is lighted by gas, and at the second stop of new (now building) which I passed this afternoon, I saw upon the top of the iron receiver a score of colored men at work, riveting the iron plates together. A curious sight greets you in all this building arrangement—it must be borne in mind that a large majority of the working population are blacks. You see them laying brick, without a white man among them, and another class filling the jobs. You see them doing painting, sheeling horses, making wagons, attending stores, pilots on the river craft, engineers on the R. R. teamsters, baggage men on the R. R. fishermen, keeping stalls in the market, keeping negro restaurants, stewards in hotels, omnibus drivers, waiters, chambermaids, matrons, serving girls, in fact, all the labor departments nearly of the city is done by, and under the control of the colored men. They are as polite and courteous as the most punctilious southerner, and have no mean ways, like some of their race—born and bred in the north—same colored men in the north could take lessons in gentlemanly manners of their brethren here, without any detriment, but on the contrary seriously to their advantage. They are a happy, jolly, dancing, light-hearted set of people, where the sun is kind, and the soil and climate begot procreantia without a murmur.

The white population here are generally merchants, professional and business men. It has been in my line to make the acquaintance of quite a number. I have heard no politics, but have heard much of Florida, her orange lands and her resources. In the ride this afternoon, coming in from Riverside, you might well imagine by the cool air off river and across that the day was late in September in Illinois, instead of June in Florida. I sleep with blankets over me every night, and a light wrap; for the air is as pleasant as one could ever wish. Except for now and then a mosquito, who is "called" me, I was not easily persuaded that this was an October night at home. I sleep like a Christian—sound and good—and the mosquito has no power to annoy. The "bank is closed" for the night.

The yards and grounds of private residences are filled with shrubbery, roses, honeysuckles, orange trees, etc., and, as you could not put in a cellar, unless it was 20 feet deep and 40 feet wide, banana trees—the giant of all—"Spanish bayonet," a curious plant that grows like a lily, only higher, and its leaves, bayonet shape, and about the length, so sharp and stiff on the point that you could stab a steer to death with one, and other curious things in the plant and flower family that you are bound to ask somebody for information in regard to.

With a large portion of all houses in piazzas, wide halls and of liberal dimensions on the ground, which speaks to you plainly that this is not the exacting storm-tight, wind-tight, water-tight and snow-tight climate of your northern house. But this letter is like the old woman's molasses, somewhat "lengthened out," long drawn out, and if not interesting to read, it is equally some effort to write. So if the game is thus opened, we'll stop for to-night.

Yours, &c.,
C. H. FULLER.

Outrage and Robbery in Neb.

CLOSING OF A COTTON MILL.

CHICAGO, June 7.—The 22 Aldermen who had been on trial before Judge Williams for contempt of court, in having counted the votes cast at the last municipal election, in spite of an injunction restraining them from so doing, were this morning fined each $100 and costs, and their counsel $300 and costs. They immediately took an appeal.

One hundred and ninety vessels have arrived in this port since Saturday. The depot of Cheyenne River Sioux, who have been in Washington consulting the Government authorities, in regard to the sale of part of their reservation, arrived in this city yesterday, and were taken to the Grand Pacific Hotel.

Rud Cloud, Spotted Tail and other Indians belonging to that party have been in the city to day, sight-seeing. They leave to-morrow morning for Omaha.

BALTIMORE, June 7.—On Saturday, near Odenton, a negro outraged Miss Jackson, a young lady aged 18, and most respectably connected. Her parents were absent from the house. She went to the spring, a short distance from the house, and on her return was met by the negro, who accomplished his diabolical deed. He had a loaded revolver, and threatened her life if she resisted. Her clothes were torn in shreds, and her face and neck horribly cut and bruised. The negro has been arrested.

OMAHA, June 7.—While the family were absent in the fields, two strangers entered the farm house of John Good, about thirteen miles west of here, on Saturday, overpowered the hired girl, brutally outraged her person, ransacked the house, sequestered $150 and escaped. No clue nor no arrests.

A dispatch from Lieutenant Stanton, Wyoming, says on Saturday afternoon a band of Arapaho Indians made a descent on Harper's ranch, 15 miles south of there, and ran off 120 head of horses. The citizens are in pursuit, but the Indians have nearly two days start of them.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—The Secretary of the Treasury to-day inspected the cash room of the Treasury Department, and other rooms where money is handled, with a view of having the construction of locks altered, etc., for the better protection of government funds. Hereafter the visitors will not be admitted to the bureau, engrossing and printing vaults of the Treasury or any room in which money is kept and handled.

NEW YORK, June 7.—A dispatch from Porterville says it is the general belief among coal operators that the miners' strike will end within a fortnight at farthest. The last to Schuylkill county alone from five months' suspension is estimated at $10,000,000, of which the men lose five millions in wages.

LAWRENCE, MASS., June 7.—The Atlantic Cotton Mills of this city, employing 1,250 operatives, will shut down on account of a dull market on the 10th of July, and remain closed till September 1st.

R. Ireland, brick-layer and contractor, No. 32 Morgan street, Decatur, Ill., will attend promptly to all job work in his line.

The Omaha Herald is a staunch Democratic paper, and when occasion requires, "red hot," but the following greeting to Vice President Wilson on his arrival at Omaha, is in pleasant contrast to many other partisan papers, which lose no opportunity for personal attack of political opponents. The Herald said:

"Henry Wilson, Vice President of the United States, is in our city. He is a distinguished citizen of the republic, and has been honored by his state and by the nation with some of the highest honors within their gift. His pure personal character, his spotless integrity, his lofty patriotism, and the high office he now holds, entitle him to the respect of our citizens. In their behalf the Herald tenders him a cordial welcome."

To the ordinary mind it looks as though those who are unfriendly to Mr. Gastman, in their effort to place Mr. Ullrich in a false position, desired to force upon the friends of Mr. Gastman the necessity of bringing out another candidate, and in that event, should Mr. Ullrich have been elected, they would have claimed it as an anti-Gastman victory. They have evidently been fooled in their little game.

"You pay your money and you take your choice." The following extracts from the New York Tribune of the 4th inst., indicate a looseness in the upper story of something or somebody about that paper that can only be accounted for on the supposition that the Tribune holds itself "independent in all things," inclusive of ordinary coherence and common sense: "There has rarely been a time when it (the political situation) has been so little complicated and confused, or when the man of average understanding, reasonable good memory, and unbiased judgment could so easily unravel its tangled ends and grasp not only the salient features but its full significance." The indications, as they present themselves to thinking men, are that the political revolution will be consummated in 1876, and the Democratic party will come into power in the nation. * * * * * Taking all things together, then, it seems by no means impossible that the Republican party should, in the course of the next twelve months, turn the tide which sets so strongly against it, now, restate itself in public confidence and hold the country for at least another Presidential term. * * * * * The Presidential election of 1876 is, up to this time, "anybody's race."

To farmers suffering from the incursions of the grasshopper, we commend the device of Farmer John Richardson, of Oswego, Neb. The 'hoppers made way with four or five acres of corn, and were going straight for his wheat fields. Calculating by observation the exact spot where they would halt for the night, Mr. Richardson made a window of lay right across the field in front of the army. When the 'hoppers reached it, about sundown, they took up their quarters for the night, and then the farmer applied his torch, with the gratifying result that the army was burned into a fertilizer in comparatively a few minutes.

Doctors Disagree as to the treatment of all diseases, from the mildest ailment to the deadliest epidemic, but the fact that the CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BOTTLES is conquering maladies which have defied the faculty, renders those professional differences of little consequence. While Dyspepsia, Gout, Rheumatism, Urinary Complaints, Biliousness, Nervous Disorders, and all disorders not organic, are obliterated by this matchless vegetable tonic and alterative, who cares for opinions? dawdw

Correction.—It having been reported that I keep a second-hand furniture store, I take this method of correcting such report. I keep nothing but the best goods and by selling them so low may have caused some to think them second hand. Don't be alarmed, I have plenty more at the same price. Great reduction in spring beds and mattresses. Priest House block.

To Walk Gracefully is a rare accomplishment, and one that can be attained only by wearing a well-shaped boot or shoe. W. Barber & Co. have a variety of stock of beautifully turned goods, adapted to summer wear, which they will be pleased to show to customers. Any and all will be sure to suit themselves from this well-selected stock.

Change of Base.—John Zellars is about to remove his meat market from Cerro Gordo street to its old stand on North Water. He will open at his new place on Wednesday morning, and will keep a full line of fresh meats, sugar-cured hams, and all other goods usually kept in a first-class meat market.

Unshaken.—While other articles of their kind are largely adulterated, Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder and True Flavoring Extracts, Vanilla, Lemon, Nectarine, etc., hold their unshaken position in the estimation of thousands as the purest, best, most reliable, and cheapest. In all particulars that constitute perfect results they cannot be approached by the various known Baking Powders and Flavoring Extracts made in imitation. One trial will satisfy that for purity and strength Dr. Price's are alone in the market.
